Marie's Problem

Recently, Marie moved to the United States. Since last summer, she has tried to get used to her new life, but things are different here. In her country, Haiti, Marie hated to stay home. She didn't use to be shy, but she is now. She and her husband used to go to cafés or dance clubs every weekend. She used to go out with friends to the movies, too. Now, she dislikes going out. Marie's problem is English. Because she is uncomfortable speaking it, she stays at home.

Marie hates speaking English because sometimes people don't understand her. She has had to ask questions many times before people understand her. She practices English in her classes, but she isn't outgoing enough to practice with her neighbors. Her children have learned to speak English quickly because they enjoy socializing with other children and they speak English with their new friends. Her husband has already made friends because of his job. And he knew a lot of English before they moved.

Her husband has told her to watch TV programs in English, but Marie likes watching programs in her first language more than watching them in English. It's too difficult to understand when there are so many new words! Marie is unhappy. She has been unhappy since she arrived from her country. This summer, she would like to go out with friends to restaurants and the movies. Marie needs to find some good strategies to help her learn English.
