Saving Time with Microwaves

Do you look for ways to save time, especially in the kitchen? One of the most commonly used time-saving devices in homes today is the microwave. Because using a microwave can cut dinner preparation time from two or three hours to a half hour, they are used by many American families.

But microwaves aren't just used in the home. They're everywhere – in restaurants, trains, cafeterias, college dormitories, and lunch or break rooms in workplaces, for example. It's not surprising that microwaves are popular. Workers and students can put leftovers from last night's dinner in the microwave, heat them for a few minutes, and eat a delicious lunch. Supermarkets also add to the convenience of microwaves because they sell different types of "microwaveable" meals. These frozen dinners are packaged in microwave-safe containers.

Some people have health concerns about food cooked in a microwave. Others feel strongly that food cooked in a microwave does not taste as good as food cooked in a regular oven. They say that using a microwave takes away from the pleasure of cooking. Luckily for people who do not believe cooking is fun, microwaves can make their lives a lot easier.

- ___ 1. Microwaves cut down on the time it takes to prepare meals.
- ___ 2. Microwaves can be used in different places, such as homes, restaurants, and cafeterias.
- ___ 3. Food cooked in microwaves may not taste as good as food cooked in regular ovens.
- ___ 4. Microwaves make it easy for workers and students to bring leftovers for lunch.
- ___ 5. Microwaves take away from the pleasure of cooking.
